A Married Woman. (1964). Drama. Foreign Films—France. B&W. 95 mins. Home. NR. (French, Subtitled: English). Video Released 2006. Macha Meril, Bernard Noel, Philippe Leroy, Margaret Le Van, Veronique Duval, Chris Tophe, Georges Liron, Roger Leenardt. Directed by Jean Luc Godard. Score by Claude Nougaro. A married woman carrying on an affair with a man discovers that she is pregnant. Double trouble follows: first, she is not sure who the father is; second, she doesn't know whether or not she loves either man. A look at modern relationships expressed largely through Godardian montages of pop art images and sounds.Also noteworthy as one of the first instances where Godard used open sex as a polemic. The film?s humorous and erotic look at French womanhood drew strenuous condemnation from Charles De Gaul and praise from film critics worldwide. Directed by Jean-Luc Godard. Script by Jean-Luc Godard. Photo by Raoul Coutard. Music by Beethoven, Claude Nougaro. Cast; Macha Meril, Philippe Leroy, Bernard Noel, Roger Leenhardt, Rita Maiden. New York Film Annex. VHS. Men in War. (1957). War (Feature Films). B&W. 102 mins. Robert Ryan, Aldo Ray, Robert Keith, Vic Morrow. Robert Ryan & Aldo Ray turn in two terrific performances in the leading roles. They have their own personal war going on, which adds another layer to the conflict, as they try to cope with the horror & devastation of the Korean War exploding around them. Ryan is attempting to get the remnants of his battered platoon back to battalion headquarters when he encounters Ray, whose sole concern is getting his shell-shocked colonel back to safety. Robert Keith is the colonel, with but one word of dialogue, who convincingly portrays in mute projection a man shocked into disturbing dumbness. Ryan & Ray join forces, reluctantly, to fight their way back to headquarters only to find it has been wiped out. The "hill" has been taken by the Red Koreans. Re-taking this is a bloody, savage ordeal that leaves only Ryan, Ray & one other comrade still alive. They stand & honor their dead, amidst the carnage, in a touching fade-out. PPI Entertainment. Metropolis: Restored Authorized Edition. Based on a novel by Thea Von Harbou. Video Released Feb. 2003. Brigitte Helm, Alfred Abel, Gustav Froehlich, Rudolf Klein-Rogge, Fritz Rasp, Theodore Loos. Directed by Fritz Lang. Designed by Otto Hunte, Erich Kettlehut, Karl Vollebrecht. Photographer Karl Freund, Gunter Rittau. Screenplay by Thea Von Harbou. In the year 2026, in the massive city Metropolis, humanity is divided between two classes: the thinkers, an elite intellectual class who live in splendor atop towering skyscrapers; and the workers, who toil anonymously underground to keep everything functioning. When the son of the city's ruler comes upon the oppressed subterranean masses, he leads them in an uprising to fight for their equality. He is aided in his crusade by a charismatic, beautiful spiritual leader from the working class. This is the most complete version of this partially lost film on home video to date. This DVD edition features the following supplements: 43 minute documentary on the making of Metropolis by Enno Patalas; featurette: the digital restoration; photo galleries featuring production stills; missing scenes; architectural sketches; poster artwork; 13 cast and crew biographies; 5.1 Surround Sound of newly recorded orchestral score; audio commentary in English, German, French and Spanish; titles in English, German, French and Spanish. Millions. Color. 98 mins. PG13. Video Released Nov. 2005. James Nesbitt, Lewis McGibbon, Alex Etel, Jane Hogarth, Daisy Donovan, Christopher Fulford. Directed by Danny Boyle. It is rare that a family film is both visually sophisticated and emotionally nuanced. MILLIONS, the fantastical tale of two British brothers and the large sack of cash literally dropped onto them from the sky, is just that—a multi-layered, majestic feast for both the eyes and the mind. Young brothers Anthony and Damian Cunninham, whose initial response to their unexpected fortune is a Robin Hood-esque spree of charity, have only one week to spend their 265,000 British pounds before their nation switches over to the Euro. Though the premise may seem trite or predictable, unexpected details—including Damian?s ability to see visions of saints and the recent death of the boys' beloved mother—add complexity to the story. As the 7- and 9-year-old Cunningham brothers, lead actors Alex Etel and Lewis McGibbon prove to be those exceptional child actors who are appealing without being precious and their understated, mature performances add gravity to a largely whimsical film. Twentieth Century Fox Entertainment. DVD. (UPC: 024543198932) $27.99.

Miracle Beach. (1992). Comedy. Color. 88 mins. PG13. Dean Cameron, Felicity Waterman, Ami Dolenz, Alexis Arquette, Brian Perry, Martin Mull, Pat Morita, Vincent Schiavelli. Directed by Skott Snider. Contribution by Scott Bindley. A contemporary heart-warming comedy interspersed with elements of fantasy, this film is an "I Dream of Genie" of the 90s set against the backdrop of the Los Angeles beach scene where Scotty McKay thinks he has it all until one day he loses everything - his job, his apartment but even more importantly, his girl. Things don't exactly improve when he meets & is rejected by Dana, a super model whom he's adored for some time. While walking the beach trying to make some sense of what's left of his life, the disillusioned Scotty meets up with Jeanie Petersen, a genie who lives in a mystical fantasyland. She has been sent to Earth on a good will mission to help the misfortunate of the world to hold onto their dreams. She helps Scotty acquire everything he thinks he wants but by tampering with the number one rule of the official Genie Code of Love, Jeanie creates a tension-filled climax in which Scotty must choose between all his fantasies & true love. Mishima: A Life in Four Chapters. (1985). Color and B&W. 120 mins. Video Released Jun. 2008. Directed by Paul Schrader. Featuring Ken Ogata. Paul Schrader's visually stunning, collagelike portrait of acclaimed Japanese author and playwright Yukio Mishima (played by Ken Ogata) investigates the inner turmoil and contradictions of a man who attempted an impossible harmony between self, art, and society. Taking place on Mishima's last day, when he famously committed public seppuku, the film is punctuated by extended flashbacks to the writer's life as well as by gloriously stylized evocations of his fictional works. With its rich cinematography by John Bailey, exquisite sets and costumes by Eiko Ishioka, and unforgettable, highly influential score by Philip Glass, Mishima: A Life in Four Chapters is a tribute to its subject and a bold, investigative work of art in its own right. Criterion Collection. DVD. (ISBN: 978-1-60465-040-2(0), UPC: 7 1551502972 8) $39.95.

The Missing. (2003). Color. 135 mins. CC R. (Dubbed: French. Subtitled: French). Video Released 2003. Directed by Ron Howard. Featuring Val Kilmer, Eric Schweig, Evan Rachel Wood, Cate Blanchett, Tommy Lee Jones. Samuel Jones (Tommy Lee Jones) is a man living in New Mexico in the 1880s. He had abandoned his family years before to live and travel with a band of Apaches, but his conscience has finally gotten the better of him and he's decided to return home. Jones, however, does not receive a warm welcome upon arrival — his wife has died and his daughter Maggie Gilkeson (Cate Blanchett), now grown and raising two children with her husband Brake (Aaron Eckhart), has no desire to see the man who left her mother to fend for herself. As Jones prepares to depart on a note of bitterness, a band of ruthless bandits, let by Army deserter Chidin (Eric Schweig), descends upon the homestead, murdering Brake and kidnapping his 15-year-old daughter Lily (Evan Rachel Wood). While Maggie feels no desire to forgive her father, she realizes he's her best hope to track down the criminals who took her child, and Jones and Maggie team up to find the bandits before they can disappear into Mexico. The Missing was based on the novel The Last Ride by Thomas Eidson. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $28.95.

Mona Lisa Smile. (2003). Color. 117 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2003. Directed by Mike Newell. Featuring Julia Roberts, Marcia Gay Harden, Kirsten Dunst, Julia Stiles. Set in 1953, Mona Lisa Smile tells the story of Katherine Watson (Julia Roberts), a new young art history professor at Wellesley College, an all-female campus with a prestigious reputation for academic excellence. Unfortunately for free-minded Berkeley grad Watson, her East Coast teaching stint comes during a less-progressive time that finds most of her students — among them Betty Warren (Kirsten Dunst), Joan Brandwyn (Julia Stiles), and Giselle Levy (Maggie Gyllenhaal) — more interested in nabbing a good husband than achieving scholastic and intellectual growth. Watson challenges her students and the Wellesley faculty to think outside of the current mores of the community and redefine what it means to be a success; meanwhile, she tries to come to terms with her own heart's desires. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $28.95; VHS.

Monster. (2003). Color. 109 mins. CC R. (Subtitled: Spanish). Video Released 2003. Directed by Patty Jenkins. Featuring Charlize Theron, Christina Ricci, Lee Tergesen, Scott Wilson, Bruce Dern Aileen Wuornos (Theron) was a woman who survived a brutal and abusive childhood in Michigan to become a thick-skinned but emotionally damaged adult. Homeless most of her life, Wuornos subsisted by working as a street prostitute; later, when she was in Florida, down to her last five dollars and pondering suicide, she stopped into a bar for a beer. There, Aileen met Selby Wall (Christina Ricci), a woman in her early twenties who had been sent to live with relatives after her Christian parents became aware of her lesbian lifestyle. Selby is immediately attracted to Aileen, and while Aileen tells Selby she's never been in a lesbian relationship, she soon finds herself equally infatuated with her. Selby runs away from her family and moves into a cheap hotel with Aileen, who initially pays the bills by hooking. However, as their money runs low and Aileen finds herself unable to land a regular job, tensions mount between the two. One night, after a john attacks her, Aileen pulls a gun and kills the man. Although her first murder can be categorized as self-defense, Aileen's loathing for the men who pay her for sex becomes so extreme that she begins killing her customers regardless of their behavior Meanwhile, Selby slowly becomes aware of the full extent of her lover's instability and the bloody consequences of her actions. Monster was inspired by the true story of Aileen Wuornos, whose life and death was chronicled in two documentaries by filmmaker Nick Broomfield, Aileen Wuornos: The Selling of a Serial Killer, and Aileen: The Life and Death of a Serial Killer. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $26.99; VHS.

Monster on Campus. (1959). Science Fiction. B&W. 77 mins. CC Video Released Apr. 1994. Arthur Franz, Joanna Moore, Judson Pratt, Nancy Walters, Troy Donahue. Directed by Jack Arnold. Fear stalks the seemingly tranquil halls of Dunsfield University with the arrival of a prehistoric fish, the coelacanth. The terror begins when a student's (Troy Donahue) lovable pet dog laps up water bloodied by the fish & becomes a savage wolf, attacking Madeline Howard (Joanne Moore). Next, paleontology professor Donald Blake (Arthur Franz) is accidentally "bitten" by the coelacanth & blacks out, only to awaken to find that a hulking beast has killed one of his friends. When Blake & two students watch an insect undergo a startling transformation after biting the coelacanth, the picture becomes clearer: somehow, contact with the fish's prehistoric blood causes a total collapse of evolution, turning animals - & humans - into mindless, murderous monsters. Just how far will Professor Blake go to test his theory?. Universal Studios Home Video, Inc. VHS, Mono Dolby Hi-Fi Digitally Recorded. The Mother. (2003). Color. 112 mins. CC R. Video Released 2004. Directed by Roger Michell. Featuring Anne Reid, Cathryn Bradshaw, Steven Mackintosh, Daniel Craig. Hanif Kureishi wrote this drama about a woman whose late-blooming romance causes a serious rift with her family. May (Anne Reid) and Toots (Peter Vaughan) are an elderly couple who travel to London to visit their two grown children, Bobby (Steven Mackintosh) and Paula (Cathryn Bradshaw). While Bobby tries to be attentive to his parents, he's busy with his two young children, a major project at work, and completing some renovations on his large and expensive house, while his wife, Helen (Anna Wilson-Jones), shows little interest in her in-laws. Meanwhile, Paula is unsatisfied with her work and carries on an affair with Darren (Daniel Craig), a builder who is working on Bobby's home. When Toots suddenly dies, May moves in with Paula, but with Paula at work all day, she has little to do. Darren stops by Paula's flat periodically, and soon he strikes up a friendship with May; their conversations soon develop into flirtation, and before long, the two have become lovers, meeting regularly for afternoon trysts in Paula's spare room. While May's relationship with Darren makes her feel happier and more alive than she has in years, it leads to an ugly confrontation when Paula learns about the affair. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $24.96; VHS.

Mr. & Mrs. Smith. Color. 112 mins. PG13. Video Released Nov. 2005. Brad Pitt, Angelina Jolie, Kerry Washington, Adam Brody. Directed by Doug Liman. Named after a 1941 Alfred Hitchcock film, MR. AND MRS. SMITH is really its own ball of flaming wax, with enough sizzling chemistry between stars Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt to blow up a small building. He shows he is equally adept in comedy and action, and she manages to set new screen standards of bad-ass sexiness. It's impossible to dislike this pair, or a movie that makes being married seem like such insane fun. Pitt and Jolie play extremely skilled professional assassins who have managed to stay married for five years without ever realizing each other's profession because they work for rival agencies and the work is top secret. When their paths eventually cross on a high-level hit, one of the most lethal battles of the sexes in the history of cinema is officially on. Thanks to a genuinely witty script, the issue isn't who will win, but whether the couple will realize they are meant for each other before it's too late. Director Doug Liman was obviously the right choice for the material, having proved his ability to fuse engaging romance with knuckle-biting action in 2002's THE BOURNE IDENTITY. The comedy is sophisticated and witty, the action is visceral and intense, and there is plenty of satisfying eye candy. Another plus is Vince Vaughn as a fast-talking fellow hit man who lives with his mother. The cinematography is by Bozan Bajelli (the genius behind Abel Ferrara's best mid-1980s work) who imbues each environment, whether it's the Smith's house, or the urban streets—with its own evocative color scheme and feel. Twentieth Century Fox Entertainment. DVD. (UPC: 024543213710) $29.99.

Wong, Donny Osmond, Eddie Murphy, Ming-Na Wen, Lea Salonga. The ruthless Hun leader, Shan-Yu & his army have invaded China & the country's beloved Emperor responds to this threat by declaring that one man from every family must serve in the Imperial Army. Meanwhile, in a distant village, Mulan, the dutiful only child of the Fa family prepares for a fateful meeting with the Matchmaker. All her life Mulan has tried hard to please her traditional parents, but her unconventional ways land her in trouble as the meeting goes awry & she is sent away in disgrace. Mulan is consoled by her father, Fa Zhou, but their conversation is interrupted by word of the Emperor's pronouncement of war. As the only male member of the Fa family, Mulan's ailing father steps forward to accept his obligation, despite Mulan's protests. That evening, Mulan searches her soul & realizes that she must defy tradition & take her father's place in the army. Mulan's eternal ancestors, awakened from their rest, decide to send a powerful guardian dragon to protect Mulan. The "dragon" Mulan inherits is Mushu, who follows Mulan as she enlists in the army, disguised as a man. Mulan joins Captain Shang & her comical fellow footsoldiers, Yao, Chien-Po & Ling, in a heroic effort to defend her country from the huns. My House in Umbria. Based on a novel by William Trevor. (2003). Color. 109 mins. CC NR. Made-for-TV. Video Released 2003. Directed by Richard Loncraine. Featuring Maggie Smith, Chris Cooper, Giancarlo Giannini, Bernard Furmann, Ronald Barker. Adapted from William Trevor's novella of the same name, the made-for-cable My House in Umbria stars Dame Maggie Smith as Mrs. Ella Delahunty, a British romance novelist living in Italy. While on a shopping excursion to Milan, Ella barely survives a terrorist train bombing. Though she recovers fairly rapidly from her ordeal, three others — a German journalist a British general and a traumatized orphan girl — still bear profound physical and emotional wounds. In the spirit of democracy and compassion, the pluck Mrs. Delahunty invites her fellow survivors to recuperate at her lavish Italian estate. This ersatz family gets along famously — at least until the arrival of the orphan's priggish uncle, American entomologist Tom Riversmith (Chris Cooper), who strongly disapproves of Mrs. Delahunty's carefree lifestyle. Warner Home Video, Inc. DVD. $26.98; VHS. $26.99.

Featuring Sean Cw Johnson, Stephen O'Reilly, Kris Lemche, Jennifer Sky. Five twentysomethings are assembled to live together for a period of six months in a house specially outfitted with a bevy of webcams in order to collect a one million prize. The one major caveat being if anyone abandons the house prior to the end of the six-month period, no one will win anything. After introducing the different characters — intelligent Danny (Stephen O'Reilly), slacker Rex (Kris Lemche), frat boy Matt (Sean CW Johnson), good girl Emma (Laura Regan), and actress wannabe Charlie (Jennifer Sky) — the story jumps ahead to the last few days before the scheduled end of the contest. At this point, it becomes apparent that outside forces are somehow manipulating certain events within the house, and the household is sent into chaos as one of the participants is found dead. Another participant receives an ominous note, and shortly thereafter, the remaining participants begin to realize the true intensity of their mortal peril. Universal Studios Home Video, Inc. Mystery, Mr. Ra. (1984). Musical Concerts And Videos (Jazz). Musical Concerts And Videos (World Beat). Color. 51 mins. Sun Ra and His Arkestra. Directed by Frank Cassenti. "I'm very tempted to simply write, 'Hey, this is a Sun Ra tape - buy it for God's sake!' Despite the epic scope of Sun Ra's 35-year career, & a depth of mystery that still surround him, "Mystery, Mr. Ra" is only the second program on videocassette that tries to document the wonder that is Ra. The other one - Robert Mugge's "A Joyful Noise" - is also a Rhapsody title; "Mystery Mr. Ra" compliments it nicely. Mugge's 1980 film tried to bring you Sun Ra's worldwide view from inside Ra's own head, & the result was consequently more surreal & personal. Shot in France in 1984, "Mystery, Mr. Ra" sticks closer to traditional form, turning an interested outsider's eye on Ra as a musician, Bandleader, philosopher, shaman, commune leader, & cosmic messenger. Rhapsody Films, Inc. VHS. (Order #: 8047, UPC: 745475 80473) $19.95.
